Avalanche (possibly sled/human triggered) on an easy to northeast facing slope around 9300 feet. There were lots of sled tracks on the slope, which is located just out of the wilderness at the far end of Buck Ridge. Slide and sled tracks appeared to be from after the weekend storm and were covered with light snow from the last couple days. Noted lots of wind transported snow along buck ridge this afternoon. Photo: K Marvinney

Advisory Region
Northern Madison
Longitude

-111.47W
Latitude
45.18N
Avalanche Details: Avalanche along Buck Ridge
Forecast link: GNFAC Avalanche Forecast for Sat Feb 4, 2023GNFAC Avalanche Forecast for Sun Feb 5, 2023
Northern Madison, 2023-02-04