Activity

Skiing

Toured up Blackmore this morning. 6-8" of new snow above 9000' with significantly more in the low angle meadows below the east ridge. Light snowfall, mainly after 11. Winds were calm throughout the am. Sky was mostly overcast but the sun came out a few times. I saw several small point release avalanches on the east face. Low angle skiing is really good up there right now! Thanks for all that you guys do.
